Enterprise Infrastructure Traceability

Why participate in the Enterprise Infrastructure Traceability Program?

To assist Canadian producers to become among the safest and highest quality in the world. Strengthen the sector's ability to respond efficiently to emergencies including food safety events and recalls, and to increase implementation of facility-based traceability systems across the agri-food chain.

Who is eligible to participate?

British Columbian growers and producers directly involved in agriculture foods intended for human consumption.

Or

Businesses operating a feedlot, transportation, processing, distribution or retail operation in B.C. for foods intended for human consumption.

How do I apply for the EIT program?

Review complete program requirements and eligibility on the ARDCorp website. Complete the application (with detailed work plan and budget) and submit it to ARDCorp. You will be notified of project approval before you can proceed.
